

ABSTRACT

Various implementations for a common message area for a customer interaction center user interface are provided. One implementation provides presenting, on an interaction center agent display device, a single user interface panel having, firstly, a work area that displays information pertaining to a particular customer with whom an interaction center agent is interacting, and secondly, a common message area for displaying electronic messages to be viewed by one or more interaction center agents.

5

30168875.doc